Canada Has Need For Patriotic
Teachers to Inculcate Proper
Ideas Regarding This
Dominion

The Mutual Resources Intelligence Service of the department of the Interior at Ottawa, 8873:

With the opening of the autumn term of the schools the pupils will again settled down to study. With this study shall be and its effect upon the after-lives of those coming Canadian men and women will depend largely upon the teachers. A serious curriculum is established by the provincial educational authorities which must be followed, but these regulations cannot and are not intended to stifle individuality entirely. The school can all look back upon our school courses, whether primary or secondary, and pick out the particular bright spots, where some of our teachers made their personality felt to

Cannot Collect For Professional Applause

Organized Hand-Clappers Deceitful

Public Eye, Vienna, June 10.

Organized applause constitutes a euphemism of the public, in the opinion of a Vienna judge. Persons engaged to do the hand-clapping and to vociferate their applause in other ways cannot receive a reward for their services.

The case arose from a dispute between Dr. Stefan, composer of a new opera, entitled "Agni," and the leader of a clique at the Burgtheater, who first performance of "Agni" was given. The judge claimed that the composer had agreed to employ services of the clique, and that

WHERE CANADA FAILS

The warning of the headmaster of the famous old Westminster School, that Australia is getting the cream of the young emigrants of British birth because Canada has an organization to look after these young citizens should give the authorities to act to remedy the lack. At a time when Canada is calling for more British immigrants, and especially for young men, it is something of a shock to hear that Canada has an organization to stimulate the movement for this kind of immigration. Canada possesses no many natural advantages that if the Dominion is not getting the cream of immigration from Britain, it is due to the fact that the Dominion is not getting the cream of immigration from Britain. Not the least of these is her educational system, which has won the praise of the members of the various Educational League, of which the headmaster of Westminster School, St. Stevens, is the chairman. Canada's entrance to the Old Country must also be an advantage in the eyes of many mothers, while her opposition makes their appeal to the boys themselves. Yet neither prefer to send their boys to distant Australia, because these are organized machinery there to care for the youthful immigrants and to shield them from dangers. At least one of the reasons for this is that the boys are sure to be well as they are here for as long as they have passed the advantage which the country offers. Now that we know so much of an authority as the headmaster of Westminster School, it is not surprising that the defect should be quickly remedied for British immigrants represent our greatest need at the present time.
